Escape to the Isle of Thanet

The Isle of Thanet is around 40 square miles in area (103.30 square km) and is situated on the most north-easterly edge of Kent, the Garden of England, with coast on three sides. Historically the isle was separated from the mainland by a significant waterway, the Wantsum Channel.

Today the isle is easily accessible with excellent road links to the national motorway network. It takes just 75 minutes from London's St Pancras International aboard HS1, the country's only high speed rail service. And rail services link Thanet to other London stations and mainland Europe (Eurostar) via Ashford International. Cross-Channel services are available from the Port of Dover and Eurotunnel.

Thanet's three resorts – Margate, Broadstairs and Ramsgate – are geographically so close to each other but beyond all three boasting great golden sandy beaches, chalk cliffs and mainline railway stations, their personalities could not be more different.

Why visit?

Londoners have been escaping to the Isle of Thanet for more than 200 years ... for the laidback seaside vibe ... breathtaking sandy beaches ... fresh sea air ... and romantic Turner skies ...

Here at the very edge of the Garden of England, three Georgian and Victorian resorts, each with its own distinctive character – Margate, Broadstairs and Ramsgate – cluster around the bays at the far end of the peninsula.

There's a retro feel to these harbour towns, with their remarkable 18th and 19th century architecture, their classic seaside heritage and kitsch, their eclectic attractions and live arts and music venues. And there is a variety of independent places to shop, eat, drink and stay.

Miles of low chalk cliffs edge the peninsula, sheltering a string of secluded, unspoilt sandy bays. Chalk rockpools, chalk stacks and rare chalk reefs teem with wildlife. These are the closest surfing beaches to the capital city: a popular choice with southeast boarders.

Artists, writers and musicians have long been inspired by this almost-island ... and continue to be drawn here. Turner said Thanet had "the loveliest skies in all Europe" ... for Dickens, Broadstairs was "the freshest, freest place" ... and Tracey Emin declares in pink neon on Margate seafront: "I never stopped loving you".

The Isle's a historic landing place steeped in symbolism for the story of Britain ... the first Saxons, Hengist and Horsa, arrived and settled here ... and St Augustine first stepped onto these shores on his way to nearby Canterbury.

For this is the furthest south east you can go in Britain ... almost touching mainland Europe ... yet these days only 75 minutes from central London ...

And now with the Turner Contemporary gallery, the return of the iconic pleasure park Dreamland, reimagined for the 21st century, and high-speed trains from the capital ... a new generation is discovering this original seaside escape.

Roots, revival and regeneration

ROOTS

The origins of the district's three distinctive resorts – Margate, Broadstairs and Ramsgate – and their surrounding villages lie in farming and fishing.

The passion for the health benefits of sea air and bathing, which started among the aristocracy in the 18th century, led to a building boom and development of the towns to cater for a rapidly growing number of wealthy visitors.

With an increase in ferry services from London and even more significantly the arrival of the railways, many more people gained access to the coastal resorts, each of which has its own mainline stations. Investment in buildings and businesses followed in their way to offer accommodation and entertainment for holidaymakers, group excursions and day trippers from the capital and beyond.

The resorts shared much in common – golden sands, sweeping beaches and hidden bays, and impressive chalk cliffs. However, each developed differently.

Ramsgate's waterfront reflects its maritime heritage including its working Royal Harbour and port. Broadstairs grew up around its traditional fishing roots with narrow streets frequented by Charles Dickens. Margate's wide and open seafront was shaped by its capacity to develop the heyday of classic seaside fun and entertainment alongside the narrow cobbled streets of its Old Town.

As the visitor economy grew so did the number of wealthier people wishing to enjoy much more of the year on the healthy coast or spend their retirement in an area where they had enjoyed happy summer holidays. Grand houses and gated communities were built along the coast on the outskirts of the main resorts as were many estates of classic bungalows.

From the mid-20th century wider access to package holidays abroad gradually took its toll on the Thanet visitor economy. Increasingly cheaper flights and the rapid growth of resorts in destinations such as Spain meant more people chose to go abroad for their one or two week family sun and sand holidays.

Thanet continued to be popular as a daytrip or weekend destination but many of the larger hotels, and guest houses had to close followed by larger entertainment venues.

REVIVAL

In recent years, fashions in holidays have changed once again. The popularity of package holidays has declined in favour of a widening interest in independent travel to more exotic destinations. More people want to be seen as travellers not tourists.

Concerns about the environmental costs of flying abroad became more focused and following the recent difficulties since the financial crisis of 2008 the popularity of the "staycation" has increased dramatically.

At the same time, people became more interested in re-discovering different areas of the UK enabled by the new trend for taking one or two short breaks during the year alongside the main holiday. Once again there was a growing desire to escape big towns and cities and get outdoors and enjoy the health benefits of walking and cycling, alongside a wealth of water sports.

Thanet with its superb coastline and beaches, alongside its history and heritage in three highly distinctive resorts in easy reach of London, is ideally placed to cater for the needs of today's visitor economy.

Broadstairs, with its narrow streets, flint-faced cottages and picturesque harbour that would still be recognised by its most famous resident, Charles Dickens, retains its traditional seaside atmosphere including two 1950s-style ice-cream parlours.

Margate captures the fun and entertainment of the Great British Seaside Holiday alongside a cultural and creative revolution inspired by the internationally acclaimed Turner Contemporary gallery, the regeneration of Margate Old Town with a wealth of cafes, galleries and independent shops and the re-opening of Dreamland.

Meanwhile, the impressive Georgian and Victorian architecture of Ramsgate overlooking its historic Royal Harbour and thoroughly modern marina, reflects its maritime heritage and its 18th and 19th century role as a very popular health and leisure destination with the wealthy. Perhaps reflecting its importance as a port and proximity to Europe, the resort is now famous for its busy waterfront continental café culture.

REGENERATION

Public and private investment in regeneration has seen the arrival of HS1, improvements to the road infrastructure, development of Ramsgate's Royal Harbour and thoroughly modern marina, and the rebirth of Margate as an internationally-acclaimed destination.

Regeneration is totally refreshing the visitor industry in Thanet and bringing benefits to the wider economy across the resorts and their villages. HS1 links Margate to St Pancras International in around 90 minutes and other rail services link Thanet to other London stations and mainland Europe (Eurostar) via Ashford International. Cross-Channel services are available from the Port of Dover and Eurotunnel.

Thanet now entertains 3.9 million visitors each year contributing £293 million to the district economy and supporting 7,312 jobs (Cambridge Model Economic Impact Survey 2015).

People working in London are making their homes in Thanet and others are opting to invest in second homes on the isle.

Thanet is attracting new investment in 21st century boutique hotels, guest houses, restaurants, cafés and outdoor leisure opportunities alongside new and relocating businesses.

The isle now has world class attractions, such as Turner Contemporary and The Powell-Cotton Museum and Quex House, at Birchington, voted the UK's most inspiring museum. Meanwhile, there is a long list of other key attractions – many relatively new such as Dreamland and The Ramsgate Tunnels – alongside traditional favourites such as Margate Shell Grotto and the Dickens House Museum at Broadstairs.

Turner Contemporary, designed by award-winning architect Sir David Chipperfield, opened to the public in April 2011 and since then has generated £50 million for the local economy (£8.9 million generated in financial year 2015/16), which has led to the opening of 72 new businesses and the safeguarding of 155 jobs.

Turner Contemporary, Margate

Turner Contemporary has also attracted 2.3 million visits, eg. visitors who came to Margate specifically to see Turner Contemporary.

Thanet District Council was the first local authority in Kent to take up on the Visit England initiative for Destination Management Plans (DMP). Working with the local tourism industry a five-year DMP has been produced and is in the third year of being delivered. This includes staff training, tourism marketing initiatives, highlighting grant and advantageous funding streams available to small and medium-sized businesses alongside investment opportunities available locally, countywide and nationally.

The need to deliver and continuously refresh an all-round high quality visitor experience is also improving the quality of life enjoyed by everyone living and working in the district.

For example, Thanet District Council worked with an artist and landscape architect to make sure flood defences constructed in Margate were designed to enhance the regeneration of Margate Old Town Conservation Area and to provide a new amenity area on the seafront.

Ramsgate Tunnel

New schemes have also been introduced by the council in Margate to improve the streetscene and bring problem and derelict buildings back into use as family homes. There are initiatives encouraging the restoration and conservation of historic properties.

Enhancing the quality of life for residents and visitors alike also plays a major role in many other regeneration initiatives attracting new businesses and investment in other sectors across the district and its business parks.

There is also a full events calendar with long standing favourites such as Broadstairs Dickens Festival, now in its 80th year, to newer additions such as Screamland.

What's New and Future Developments

Thanet's regeneration has only just started. There are a number of new and exciting projects that come to fruition this year, which will help build on the current success story.

ST. AUGUSTINE'S CHURCH VISITOR CENTRE, RAMSGATE

A new Visitor Centre planned for St. Augustine's Church in Ramsgate will open on 3 June. This will house The Pugin and St Augustine's education, research and visitor centre. The project aims to increase knowledge and accessibility for people of all ages around two themes: the Victorian architect, Augustus Welby Northmore Pugin and St. Augustine of England, founder of the Christian church in Southern England.

The centre will provide facilities for visitors, schools and the local community to learn about Pugin and St. Augustine with teaching, displays and physical access through the principal areas of this seminal building.

NEW COASTAL EXPLORER PACKS

The packs enable self-guided exploration of Margate, Broadstairs and Ramsgate, linking coast and heritage. Materials include trails, historic maps, binoculars, compass, rock pooling nets and marine life identification sheets.

DREAMLAND MARGATE

Dreamland is one of Britain's oldest surviving amusement parks and has been an essential part of Margate's identity for nearly 100 years. Thanet District Council's efforts to secure the site has unlocked significant regeneration works and, along with other public organisations and the Dreamland Trust, helped secure £18m of public funding. It is likely that the site's jewels, the Grade II*-listed Scenic Railway, Grade II* - listed cinema complex and Grade II-listed menagerie cages, would have further degenerated without this intervention.

Alongside the operator's plans for a new and rejuvenated offer on 26 May, the council is undertaking the next phase of redevelopment which will see the iconic Sunshine Café brought back to life and the front of the cinema building restored.

12 ARTHUR ROAD, CLIFTONVILLE

New for summer 2017. In the 1950s/60s, 12 Arthur Road was the Cecil Hotel and accommodated up to 50 people. Redesigned by architect Sam Causer, this 1890s Cliftonville townhouse will be available for hire for a group of ten to enjoy historic reception rooms, five en-suite bedrooms and a walled garden. Furnishings are being selected to reflect its Victorian beginnings, its 50s/60s heyday and the needs of today.

ROYAL VICTORIA PAVILION, RAMSGATE

The Grade II listed building is being developed by J D Wetherspoon into one of the largest public houses in the UK. It is due to open on 29 August.

Original details obtained from photographic and drawing archives will inspire much of the interior design, which will seek to blend contemporary styling with the building's genuine design heritage.

Situated next to Ramsgate's Seaside Award beach, Royal Victoria Pavilion, will feature artwork and photos depicting local history and characters of the area, as well as information on the building itself.

BAY TREE HOTEL, BROADSTAIRS

The Bay Tree Hotel in Broadstairs will reopen this July following a major refurbishment. The seafront hotel and restaurant has been extended to include 10 en suite bedrooms, eight of which have sea views, and one room that is accessible to wheelchair users and is dog-friendly.

The refurbishment will transform the guesthouse into a modern, boutique hotel, whilst respecting the original period features of the 1896 building. The new interior will include unique and memorable touches, including items from the owners' travels in India, up-cycled furniture and limited edition artwork.

- The Georgian architecture of health and pleasure peppers the district as a monument to the Island's life-enhancing properties and it is no coincidence that Margate pioneered the mixed bathing rebellion among the Edwardian working class; a revolution led by the great Soubrette and Margate-lover Marie Lloyd.
- One of Thanet's rarest and strangest wildlife can be found at the back of our chalk sea caves - living algal communities cover the sides and back of the caves.
